

VIRTUAL LABORATORIES AS STRATEGY TO IMPROVE TEACHING IN EXACT SCIENCES AND ENGINEERING IN BOLIVIA

Dr. Francisco J. Triveno Vargas

Doctor (2005) and Master (2000) from the Santa Catarina Federal University, Brazil. Currently develops aeronautical systems in EMBRAER S.A. He has experience in the areas of Aerospace Engineering, with an emphasis on non-linear control techniques applied to aircraft. Automation and Control Engineering, with emphasis on manipulator control. He is a consultant in unmanned aerial vehicles (VANTS) and in Modeling and Simulation of systems with Computational Algebra. He is the author of two books, one in Brazil and the other in Bolivia

Msc. Hugo Siles Alvarado

He received a Master of Science degree in 1975 in the Uppsala University, Sweden. His undergraduate work was performed at the University of San Andrés in La Paz; Macalester College, Minnesota and the University of Minnesota in the United States. He was professor of basic science in different universities in Cochabamba, Bolivia. was the Permanent Representative to the United Nations for Bolivia from July 2007 to February 2009